GHOST SEEKS COAT IN VAIN, WARNS WIFE

Trenton Seance Gets Message From One Who Killed Himself.

"HANG IT ON MY HOOK"

Then Bandit of Other Plane Is Blamed for Urging Self-Destruction.

TRENTON, April 2.—John Koch, who killed himself in his home at 419 Ferry street, this city, two months ago, came back in spirit last night, apologized for the trouble he caused and asked the his coat and hat be hung on the nail where he used to put them—that is, Koch did all this to the satisfaction of a group of Spiritualists and some of the family.

Mrs. Koch's complaints that the doors were being rattled by her husband's wrath and that occasionally since he voluntarily, in a fit of rage, stopped off this plane, she has found cause to fear all her best dishes would be broken, led to a seance last night in which some of the best known spiritualists of the city were present. The only others in the audience were a policeman and a reporter, but they took no part in what went on. This is how it was done:

The "sitters," as the Spiritualists called themselves, sat around the room, as might be inferred. Mrs. Koch sat with them. The leading ghost secker announced that the sitters would sit in silence unless impelled to speak by an ultra-ultra plane force. Should any one talk, she explained, then all must conclude Koch had arrived. In case any one felt like singing hymns she was to sing right ahead.

One of the "sitters" had been brought under the influence of Koch's spirit and was using her vocal cords. Mrs. Koch agreed to sing one, her husband's name used to like to hum. When the singer became silent the rest of the roomful exclaimed "Welcome," and the singer answered "Thank you."

Next, one of the spook chasers asked Mrs. Koch why she didn't hang her husband's hat and coat on the old hook. That was accepted as a message from Koch and a proof that he romps around town in spirit at night and has been feeling cold.

The finale so far as Koch's ghost was concerned was a statement from another spirit who is supposed to have joined the Trenton man in a visit to his old home town. The second fellow told everybody that Koch killed himself while under the influence of a bad spirit, a spirit who likes to see trouble and makes as much of it as possible. Lay persons, including the Trenton cop, assumed that the bad spirit might be a sort of bandit of the other plane.

BONDS FOR MACY EMPLOYEES.

$100 Liberties Given to 25 Year Club Members at Dinner.

Employees of R. H. Macy & Co., members of the Macy Twenty-five Year Club, attended the first annual entertainment of the organization last night in the dining room of the Macy store.

At the dinner preceding the entertainment the firm presented a $50 Liberty bond to every member of the club, and announced that men and women employed for a quarter of a century or more by the company will have an extra week's vacation, with pay, each year. Members of the firm were the guests of the club.

COLUMBIA'S PRODIGY GIVES HIS IMPRESSIONS OF CIRCUS

Edward Roche Hardy, Jr., Writes That Elephants Looked Disdainfully at Him and Seemed to Be Very Wise—He Finds Trapeze People Perform by Kind of Rhythm.

Here is a circus story written by Edward Roche Hardy, Jr., the boy prodigy who matriculated at Columbia University last fall at the age of 12. He is the son of Prof. and Mrs. Edward Roche Hardy of 419 West 118th street, and is one of the youngest freshmen ever to enter an American college.

Long before I came in sight of Madison Square Garden I could see that I was coming near a circus. Almost every window had an advertisement in it with large pictures of what one would see at the circus. And then there were children in automobiles on foot all joyfully going in the same direction. These marks showed me where I was as clearly as the loud hum that you hear by the Sub-Treasury tells you when you are near the curb market.

I went down to see the animals after the crowd had departed, so that they would be as much as possible in their natural state. The massive elephants waded from side to side and looked disdainfully down upon me. I wonder what they were thinking? They seemed very wise.

The dogs barked loudly as I approached. To them such an unexpected visitor doubtless seemed to be breaking the rules. The little ponies looked at me in astonishment. The Bengal tiger was quietly sleeping, but I could see why when the rustle that he makes is heard in the grass all the little things of the jungle, below and above, become silent. The seals were all the making a sort of grunting sound. The man at the gate told me that they really did mind the cold.

In another cage there was a horned antelope sitting for its picture. Sometimes it grew restless, like humans who sit for their picture, and moved its head, but the artist simply motioned with his pencil and the antelope again put its head down in front of him.

Then I came up stairs and went to see the gorilla. "It's so seldom one meets an ancestor." But though the gorilla was not sleeping he had wrapped himself in blankets up to his neck.

Then I looked around at the seats of the strange people, but there was no one in them. But then I saw them all gathered holding a convulsion in the corner of the room. There was only one person besides myself in the room who was not a freak and he was a circus official of some kind. They had been complaining about the cold and as I came up the official told them to send a delegation to see if they could find a warmer place. This is a democratic country. Two went off, first putting their furs around them—the sword swallower and the snake charmer, I believe. Finally they came back holding their furs even tighter. Yet they were not thinly dressed, at least they would not have been if they had been fashionable ladies.

I did not stop to hear what they had decided upon, for inside the horns were blowing loudly at the show. The first I saw were the lions, the best part of the whole show. When one of them had finally lapsed all the others and led them out he gave the impression of having much more ability which he did not deign to exhibit. Next came the trapeze people. They seemed to perform their feats rather by a kind of rhythm that pervaded their whole bodies than by mere athletic skill. Lastly came the elephants. Of course they performed their feats most excellently, but as Dr. Samuel Johnson once said on seeing some dogs standing on their hind legs, "The wonder is not that they do it so well, but that they do it at all."

HEADS CAMP FOR GIRLS.

Mrs. Oliver Harriman was installed as president of the Camp Fire Girls at the regular monthly meeting of the board of directors last Friday afternoon, at 31 East Seventeenth street. Other directors taking office were Mrs. Shepherd K. de Forrest and Mrs. Lorillard Spencer. Enthusiasm greeted the announcement that William H. Booth, vice-president of the Guaranty Trust Company, had accepted the office of treasurer, and that Gen. John J. Pershing and Dr. Lyman Plake of the Life Extension Institute were on the Advisory Board.

ESCAPES FROM TOMBS BY DUPING OFFICIALS

Prisoner Impersonates Fellow Inmate and Walks Out.

Frederick Stern, indicted on a charge of snatching a purse Sunday from Alonso Larea, a publisher, in front of the Strand Theatre, escaped from the Tombs yesterday by impersonating a fellow prisoner.

Stern, during his few days in the Tombs, became friendly with a man who was to be released at 4 o'clock yesterday. At the hour set for release Stern edged his way to the door and answered when his friend's name was called. He was able to give the correct pedigree and was allowed to walk out.

A little later the man who should have been released began to ask questions, and the Tombs officials had to admit that they had been duped. The police are searching for Stern. The other prisoner still is in the Tombs.

RUMOR OF ROCKEFELLER ILLNESS IS DENIED

Starr J. Murphy Collapse Gave Rise to Story.

A rumor gained currency yesterday in the financial district to the effect that John D. Rockefeller was seriously ill at Ormond, Fla. It was denied at the offices of the Standard Oil Company, whence there was issued a statement explaining that Starr J. Murphy, Mr. Rockefeller's personal counsel, had been taken ill while visiting Mr. Rockefeller in Florida.

Mr. Rockefeller, the statement said, was all right. The nature of Mr. Murphy's illness is not disclosed.
